

SLEUTH DEFIES A MAGISTRATE.

Detective Charlton Orders Mr. Crane on the Bench to Shut Up.

CHARGES ARE PREFERRED

Court at First Threatens Arrest but Changes His Mind and Forwards Complaint to Commissioner Partridge.

For giving Magistrate Crane "back talk" to-day in court Central Office Detective Robert Charlton will have to answer to charges which have already been preferred against him by the Magistrate before Commissioner Partridge. For a moment in court the detective was threatened with arrest on the spot for contempt, but the magisterial heart was softened at the critical moment and instead of ordering the detective locked up, he instructed his clerk to write out a complaint which the Magistrate signed and forwarded to Police Headquarters.

The controversy developed when Charlton and Detective Frank Boyle arraigned in court Oscar Allen, a colored waiter, of No. 350 West Thirty-seventh street, and charged him with the larceny of a diamond pin belonging to Mrs. Hugo Hoefler, of No. 358 West One Hundred and Forty-second street. The alleged theft took place at the Kensington Hotel, Saratoga, where Mrs. Hoefler was a guest with her husband. Allen waited upon her one night in August. After that she missed her pin and Allen, too, had disappeared, leaving his wages uncollected.

Confession Story Invented. Boyle and Charlton arrested Allen. In the Harlem Court to-day Boyle told the Court that Allen had confessed to him that he had "hooked" the pin. Allen exclaimed that he was innocent and that the detective had invented the story of his confession.

"I believe this man," said Magistrate Crane, "and you know very well why I say that I believe him as against your statement here." The Magistrate looked sternly at Boyle. The latter whined that he didn't think that the Magistrate was warranted in making the imputation, and then burst out, "You know, Judge, that you have always pounded me. You pounded me down at Jefferson Market and now you are starting in again here in Harlem. I don't think it is right."

"I do not pound you," retorted the Magistrate warming up to the controversy, "but I spoke my mind freely concerning your lack of your methods. I repeat that I do not believe this man made a confession to you and you know who."

Carlton Leaps Into the Fray. Then Charlton, who was standing by, jumped into the dialogue.

"Ah! You know you pounded Boyle good and hard!" he exclaimed in an angry tone. "You're always pounding him!"

"Shut your mouth," commanded the Magistrate, shaking a warning finger at the sleuth, who was very much excited.

"You shut up," came the retort from Charlton. "I've got a right to talk in this court and I don't propose to shut up."

Charlton strode up to the desk and faced the Magistrate boldly.

"Silence," thundered the court, but Charlton still talked.

"I'll commit you for contempt," exclaimed Magistrate Crane warmly.

"Well, commit me," said the sleuth, "but I'll come again for the detective. The Magistrate was on the point of ordering the arrest of the detective when he said: 'If I cause your arrest now, you are in danger of losing your place in the department. I shall order that charges be preferred against you before Commissioner Partridge.'"

Charlton and Boyle left the court. The charges were forwarded by messenger.

SPRY "OLD DAN" SAFE OUT OF HOLE

Park Row Crowd Cheered As Contractor's Horse Was Hoisted Out of Excavation Into Which He Had Fallen.

"Old Dan," one of the team of gray horses owned by T. Harrington & Co., contractors, who was excavating for the new subway around the foundations of the old Hall of Records, tumbled into the trench to-day, falling twelve feet and escaped with hardly a scratch. The animal hung suspended by his harness for several minutes but "Bill," his mate, pulled mightily and saved himself from being dragged over the brink of the hole in the ground.

Then "Old Dan" slipped from the restraining straps and fell with a thud the rest of the distance but struggled to his feet unhurt.

There was no convenient way out of the excavation for "Old Dan," so workmen hauled him to a sling made of a network of ropes and brought the travelling derrick into requisition.

Dan was hoisted comfortably in the air and landed safely on all fours on the roadway.

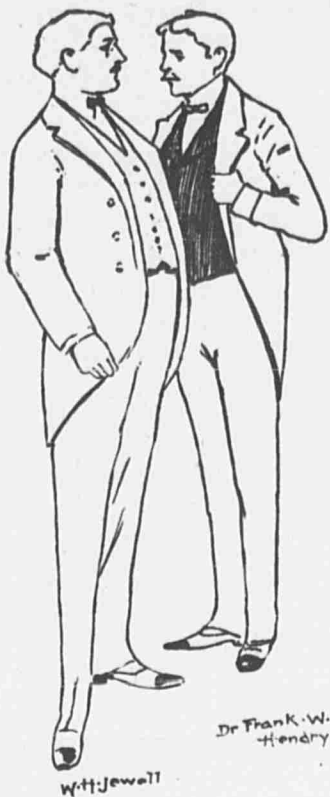

A great crowd gathered at the bridge approach and upon the overhead bridge extension watched the proceedings and cheered when the old horse was landed safely. He was hitched up to his mate and trotted off with his head in the air.

SUES FOR $50,000.

William B. Atterbury, Republican executive member from the Seventeenth Assembly District, Brooklyn, who was served with a summons and complaint in a suit for $50,000 damages for defaming the character of his once esteemed friend, Edward L. Bryker, has not yet recovered from the shock sustained when the papers were thrust upon him. They were served at the rooms of the Levi P. Morter Club, Lewis and Macon streets, Brooklyn, Monday night.

DENTIST HURLS MARRIED MAN HE FOUND WITH PRETTY CASHIER FROM HIS FLAT.

Walter H. Jewell Is Arrested and Fined $5 for Intrusion and Goes Home to Explain All-Night Absence.

For going uninvited to another man's flat Walter H. Jewell, a stock broker, of No. 44 Broad street, paid a fine of $5 in Harlem Police Court to-day. Then he turned his reluctant feet in the direction of No. 203 West One Hundred and Seventeenth street, where his wife and two children were awaiting him for an explanation as to why he had been out all night.

The complainant against Mr. Jewell was Dr. Frank W. Hendry, a dentist, with a place of business at No. 158 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street. Dr. Hendry lives in a flat at No. 226 West One Hundred and Twenty-third street, and it was there that he found Mr. Jewell last night in company with Pauline Hilburn, formerly the dentist's cashier. He found Jewell out of the flat. Resulting events were of such a nature that the neighbors called a policeman, and Mr. Jewell was arrested.

"The father of Miss Hilburn," said Dr. Hendry in court to-day, "is an old friend of mine. At his solicitation I gave her the position of cashier in my dental parlors."

Said He Was an Old Friend. "It was not a great while before I noticed that Jewell was hanging around the dental parlors considerably and not getting anything done to his teeth. I remonstrated with the young woman, but she said Jewell was an old friend. I was compelled to discharge her."

"Her people came around and asked me to take her back. I consented on condition that she would promise to keep away from Jewell. She made me this promise and I intended to reinstate her."

"Miss Hilburn, after I had promised to take her back, said that she had some furniture partly paid for and asked me to secure a flat for her. As I only occupy part of my flat I told her she could move her furniture into the vacant rooms. She did this yesterday, and I went to the instalment house from which she had purchased the furniture and paid the balance on it."

"When I got to my flat at 9 o'clock last night I found Jewell there. He related when I tried to put him out and was arrested because of the row he caused."

"The Doctor was Offensive." Jewell said that he visited the girl because she sent for him, saying she was in trouble. The doctor, he said, was offensive and attacked him.

"You had no business in another man's flat," said the Magistrate. "I will have to fine you."

Miss Hilburn, who is very pretty, after trying all night to get ball for Jewell, disappeared. At Mr. Jewell's home the blinds were drawn this morning and repeated rings failed to bring anybody to the front door.

TEAMSTERS ON STRIKE. CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—All the excavating teamsters in Chicago went on strike this morning for an increase in wages to $2 a day. About 600 men, doing the teaming for the principal firms making excavations for new buildings, are involved.

LOAN BILL PASSES. HAVANA, Sept. 10.—The Loan Bill passed the House of Representatives here by 48 votes to 2.

DEPORTED FOR DEFORMED FOOT. Brantwines Couldn't Enter This Country Because Woman Had a Twisted Ankle.

When the steamship St. Louis, of the American line, left her dock this morning she carried on board Emanuel and Rachael Brantwine, husband and wife, ordered deported by the Ellis Island authorities. A writ of habeas corpus issued by Justice Stecker, of the Supreme Court, ordering the master of the ship to produce the couple in court to-day was ignored.

Mr. and Mrs. Brantwine arrived at this port Sunday and were taken to Ellis Island with other immigrants. Mrs. Brantwine has a deformed foot and walks only with assistance.

Friends appealed to Felix H. Levy, an attorney, yesterday when the official decision was made known and Mr. Levy went to Ellis Island and saw Commissioner Williams. He explained that Brantwine had always made a good living for himself and wife and that the friends here would see that they did not become a charge upon that community. Mr. Williams said he was doing his duty as he saw it and Mr. Levy said he would apply to the courts to review the case.

According to his report of the interview the Commissioner replied that the couple were no longer in the hands of the United States authorities but had been sent aboard the St. Louis and were in the custody of the steamship line.

Justice Stecker, of the Supreme Court, issued a writ of habeas corpus instructing the master to produce husband and wife in his court this morning.

When his clerk reported to him this morning that the ship had sailed and that Brantwine and his wife were aboard, Mr. Levy called up the company's office and, explaining the situation, demanded that the couple be put off at Quarantine and produced in court in obedience to the writ. He was informed that the ship would proceed without stopping for that purpose. Mr. and Mrs. Brantwine are now on the high seas.

EDITOR GRADY'S SON IS MISSING. Detectives are searching in this and other cities for Henry W. Grady, son of the famous Southern editor, who has disappeared under mysterious circumstances. He left New York with his wife and child after a visit to friends here, and got as far as Norfolk, Va., on his way home, when all trace of him was lost.

W. H. Black, a lawyer, with offices at No. 100 Broadway, who is a brother-in-law of the missing man, is leading the search in this city. He has no theory to offer regarding Grady's disappearance, unless it can be ascribed to illness.

The last seen of Grady by his wife or anybody who knows him was on last Friday, when he alighted from the train at Norfolk to get tickets for Atlanta, his home.

Mr. Grady had been a sufferer from hay fever, but was so refreshed by the trip North that he decided to hurry South. It is known that he hadn't much money. The amount in his pockets must have been less than $50.

Mrs. Grady has gone home, after having an exhaustive search made in Norfolk. The Norfolk police are confident he is not there. He was one of the best known young men in Atlanta, both in social and political circles.

Eugene R. Black, a prominent attorney, of this city, and brother-in-law of Mr. Grady, is now in New York in quest of him, having abandoned all hope of finding him in Norfolk. Mr. Grady has long suffered from severe attacks of hay fever, and it is thought by some of his close friends that his protracted illness affected his mind. A theory advanced in explanation of his disappearance is that he might have wandered aboard an outlying steamer or train while under temporary mental aberration.

The theory of foul play also has been put forward, but it is difficult to find a motive. The theory of suicide is not entertained by his friends or family. His domestic life was happy and he was in very comfortable financial circumstances.

THE APOLLO PIANO. The Apollo piano player will make a merchant conduct a better store, a man a nobler being, a woman a better wife, a sweetheart a true lover, because it teaches the exquisite art of self-development. If you knew the value of the Apollo piano player you would cheerfully and wisely make any kind of sacrifice to obtain it. It develops the mind and warms the heart, and everybody can play it.

COFFEE BLOATING. Coffee Causes Liver Congestion in Some People.

"We drank coffee some years and it seemed an established law in our household to take refuge with some medicine or physic to make the bowels move or relieve the stomach of its pressure (coffee is generally the cause of persistent constipation, as it produces more or less congestion of the liver)."

"I was so nervous that my hands trembled sadly and sleep fled from me; I felt irritable all the time and unable to do much of any work. I had to force myself to do things; always felt lazy and had to drive myself to get around; the food I ate belched up and I always felt as if I were bloated, and in a few days and tight sensation in my chest, so that every little exertion started hot waves running through the whole body, followed by a cold, chilly sensation."

"But after I commenced to use Postum Food Coffee and quit coffee these complaints all disappeared; I feel well, energetic and hopeful; am better nourished and able to sleep well every night."

"My husband was often sick and the doctor and medicine were constantly needed in our house, but since we stopped coffee and used Postum all these things are changed and that heavy feeling around the chest has gone."

"Every wife should introduce this wholesome beverage into her family. She would discover in a few days what a rich food she had prepared for her loved ones, and would be rid of all of those oppressive sensations and stomach and bowel complaints which are caused by coffee drinking."
